

FOR PRESIDENT, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, of Illinois. FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee.

Union State Ticket.

For Governor, OLIVER P. MORTON. For Lieutenant Governor, CONRAD BAKER, of Vanderburg. For Secretary of State, NELSON TRUSSLER, of Fayette.

Union Meetings.

There will be a Union Mass Meeting at Mitchell, in this County, on THURSDAY, July 21st, 1864. Also, at Owensburg, on SATURDAY, July 23rd, 1864.

Operations before Petersburg.

Grant is still before Petersburg, which place he has assaulted repeatedly, without accomplishing any material advantage. He tried to flank it, but failed, with considerable loss.

In reading the above precious editorial, from the last number of the Appeal, one would suppose he was reading from the Richmond Examiner, Jeff Davis' organ.

Do you, Mr. Appeal, indorse the "able and eloquent" speech of the Captain? Speak out. Many of the people have understood you and the faction that sustains you, to favor peace with the rebels upon the terms of acknowledging the independence of Jeff Davis' bogus Confederacy.

The rebel editors turn with imploring looks to their "Northern friends," in this hour of trial, to come to the rescue, and break down the wall of fire that is encircling them.

The Pleasant Run Speeches. The editor of the Appeal informs us that the Democrats of Pleasant Run Township, had a glorious celebration on the 4th. He says: "The Declaration was read by E. A. Parks, Esq., after which speeches were made by Henry M. Headle and Capt. S. W. Short.

the administration receives such a scathing rebuke as he gave it." Did the chivalrous Captain shoot mud or bullets? Ah! Captain, you ought to know, that while you may amuse your friends by such pranks, you are placing yourself in a very awkward position before your friends, and the loyal people generally.

"It is reported that Sherman has captured Marietta. This rumor needs confirmation. Johnson's army has been heavily re-enforced."—[Bedford Appeal, 7th inst.

Now, reader, what do you think of the loyalty of the man who would deliberately make the above statement, two days after the capture of Kenesaw and Marietta by Sherman, was officially published? Does it not look like he was unwilling to believe that his friend, Joe Johnson, had been driven from his strong position by Sherman, and therefore, he tries to throw doubt upon it by saying it "NEEDS CONFIRMATION." And then, as if desirous of cheering up his friend Joe, and his northern sympathisers, he adds: "Johnson's army has been heavily re-enforced." Ah! Mr. Appeal, when did you learn that? Perhaps that "needs confirmation."

Captain Short at Pleasant Run.

It is said, by some of those who heard the Captain on the glorious Fourth, that he gave the Peace-on-any-terms Democracy a "scathing rebuke." We understand that he declared himself for a vigorous prosecution of the war against the rebellion, until an honorable peace is conquered; and that any man who was in favor of the recognition of the independence of the Southern Confederacy, ought to be hung as high as Haman.

How does the Appeal man take the "scathing rebuke?" With a good deal of humility, we suppose. For, speaking of that "scathing" speech, the editor says: "The speech of Captain Short was able and eloquent." No doubt of it; and we hope the "scathing rebuke" which the Captain administered to the Peace Democracy, may yield the peaceful fruits of reformation, though for the present, it may not seem pleasant.

You do, Mr. Appeal, indorse the "able and eloquent" speech of the Captain? Speak out. Many of the people have understood you and the faction that sustains you, to favor peace with the rebels upon the terms of acknowledging the independence of Jeff Davis' bogus Confederacy.

The rebel editors turn with imploring looks to their "Northern friends," in this hour of trial, to come to the rescue, and break down the wall of fire that is encircling them.

EX-PRESIDENT PIERCE A REBEL.—The Biblical Recorder publishes the following note from Rev. Mr. Pritchard, of Raleigh, North Carolina: "Last Spring, a prominent member of the church of which I was pastor, in Baltimore, met at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in New York, ex-President Pierce. Mr. Pierce manifested the warmest sympathy for the South in this struggle for independence, declared that he only hoped for freedom on this condition, was in the success of the South; that old as he should have been in the Confederate army, but for the health of his wife, and that he desired no higher earthly honor than to be a private in the ranks of the Confederate army."

TRAITOR—A SOLDIER'S DEFINITION.

—We copy the following article from the National Union of Cincinnati. It is decidedly the harshest bit at the press we ever had the pleasure of reading. F. W. Brownlow is thrown in the shade by the writer of these words. "If the cops desire to know what the soldiers think of them, let them read the following, which is a good expression of the opinion of soldiers:

A traitor! No other seven letters of the alphabet can be made to form a word so full of meaning; nor form in our language conveys the sum total of all villainies so completely. Nor can all the letters, arrange, transpose, and rearrange them as you will, do the subject justice.

A traitor! May he never smile again. May he live a thousand years with his conscience gnawing at him constantly. May he have the tic-douleur all night, and jumping tooth-ache all day, with occasional intervals of relief to enjoy brief dreams and visions of peace on earth and happiness in heaven, and awake to the reality with a keener relish for it, may he be tormented with fleas, flies, and bed-bugs, snakes, centipedes and scorpions; that he may have no rest for the sole of his foot; and may he be distracted with the croaking of frogs and the hooting of owls, while he is being nibbled to death by all sorts of venomous reptiles; and may he not die until his executioners have starved to death upon his bones, which shall be bleached as white as the bones of thousands of the victims of his treason.

It had a dog so degraded, so lost to all sense of decency and self-respect, and so far forgot his dignity as to bite the thing while it lived, I would doom that dog to the most ignominious death that ingenuity could devise. If I would see a carting crew stop so low as to peck at the rotton carcass of the traitor as it lay festering in the ditch—where he may have died of starvation or mania-potu—I would steal a gun to kill it with, and break the gun for performing so filthy an office; then jump into a vat of boiling soap to purify my hands from the contamination of the dog's carcass.

I would—I would have—I would—I would have—I would give it up; I can't do the subject justice. Reader, you may excuse him if you please, but I hope he will never extend his hand to me in friendship. I may forgive the rebel in arms, who has been deceived into the belief that he was right, and has manhood enough to fight for his principles. But the copperhead traitor—the feather-bed traitor—who has not the manhood to put up with a rebuke, and who has no honor in presenting himself at a safe distance with giving aid and comfort; desiring the success of the enemies of our Government, glories in the defeat of our armies, and wishing that (for the purpose of rendering the party in power unpopular) he is directly praying to hear of my death—me, whom he calls his friend. Can I forgive him? Should I? He is not only responsible for increasing and prolonging the calamities of our country, the slaughter of thousands of better men than himself upon both sides in the contest, but for the loss of immortal souls who go to eternity without forgiving him. It is commanded, "Forgive thine enemies," "love those who do not, can not, and will not, is the name of J. H. JACKSON, Wilder's Bat's Ind. Vet. Vol. Artillery.

—JEFF DAVIS AND HIS MULLATO CHILDREN.—Abolitionists are constantly accused in copperhead papers of trying to bring about an amalgamation of whites and blacks; but those papers are very unskillful to console their readers, as far as possible, with the fact as related in the following extract of a letter from an officer in the army to a Senator in Washington: "While at Vicksburg, I resided opposite a house belonging to a negro man who once belonged to Joe Davis. A brother Jeff Learning and I, I happened one day to think that he perhaps would know something about the true story told in the London Times, that there was a son of Jeff Davis, the mother of whom was a slave woman, in our midst. The next day I met one man I asked him if he met ever known Maria, who had belonged to Jeff Davis, and was the mother of some of his children? He replied that he had not known Maria, but that he knew his Massa Joe Davis' Eliza, who was the mother of some of Massa Jeff's children. I then inquired if she had a son in the navy? He replied that she had—he knew him—they called him Parver Davis. He said that Eliza was dead, that her son thirty miles, at work on a plantation. The next day, as I was walking down the street, I met the man, who was driving his mule team, and he stopped to tell me that Eliza had returned. A few moments afterwards he came back, and pointing to one of two women who came walking along, he said she was the one of whom he had been talking. When she came up, I stopped her, and inquired whether she had not a son who would like to go with me to the South? She replied that she would like to go too. I told her that I only wanted a lad. She said that her son had gone up the Red River on board the gunboat Carondelet, but when he returned she would be pleased to have him go. 'Well,' said I, 'some day do you suppose your son would do you suppose its so?' 'Suppose,' she cried with indignation, 'I's no right to suppose what I know's—am certain so. Massa Jeff was the father of five of my children, but they are all dead but that boy, and then I had two that he wasn't the father of. There's no suppose about it! Perhaps if the boy gets back safe on the Carondelet, you may see him in Boston some of these days.'

THE LAST PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.—Four candidates were presented by their respective parties for the Presidency, in 1860, and the election on the 6th of November resulted in giving LINCOLN and HAMILTON, 1,857,510, DOUGLASS and JOHNSON, 1,367,610, BRECKINRIDGE and LEWIS, 847,553; BRANT and BRANT, 590,633. The vote shows that if Douglas had been nominated at Charleston he would have been elected, but the Democratic leaders foresaw that, and knew it would leave them without a pretext for destroying the Government. Breckinridge and Lane were disunion candidates, and ran as the chosen instruments of a dirty gang of traitors to do a dirty and wicked work.

The news of Mr. Lincoln's election was received at Charleston, South Carolina, with loud cheers for a Southern Confederacy, on the 7th of November, and the 'Palmetto' flag was hoisted on the vessels in the harbor. On the 9th of the month the attempt was made to seize Fort Moultrie. November 10, a ball was introduced into the South Carolina Legislature to raise and arm 10,000 troops. The same infernal Legislature, before Lincoln was inaugurated, called a Convention to secede from the Union. The same day, the 11th, Senators Cheastnut and Hammond resigned their seats and went full enough into the work of treason. Now, let this war go on, and let Grant's great army go on South until it reaches South Carolina and lays in ashes Charleston and Columbia, set their negroes free, and reduce to want, nakedness and starvation the white inhabitants of the State!—[Knoxville Whig.

Way—Tennessee was settled in 1769. Ohio in 1788, consequently Tennessee is 23 years older than Ohio. Tennessee has 3,381,000 more acres of land than Ohio, richer in minerals more fertile in crops, and favored with a milder climate. There are many reasons why Tennessee should to-day be far ahead of Ohio in population, wealth, property, improvements, education and general intelligence. The reverse, however, is the fact. Ohio is so far ahead that a true Tennessean must blush at the painful contrast. Let us all inquire why it was that in 1860 Ohio was the third State in mass and Tennessee the tenth. One reason is that Ohio has not the honest prosecution of the inquiry.—[Nashville Times.

The problem of suspending life by freezing seems to be accumulating data. Perch and mullet, having been brought from Lake Champlain frozen perfectly solid, and on being taken care of, will have come to life as lively as ever. A female convict in Sweden is in ice on experiment. A man was found lately in Switzerland, who gave signs of life after being frozen for nine months. The power of stopping while the world goes on, is being taken out of him, ice houses may soon be advertised, with comfortable arrangements for skipping an epoch, or waiting for the next generation.

A singular marriage took place in Dayton, Ohio, the other day. A Captain Lewis was wedded to Miss Maggie McCracken. They had been engaged; the Captain was wounded at the recent battle of the Wilderness, and on hearing of it, Miss Maggie left home and went to take care of him, tended him and brought him home. At the time of his marriage he was strapped to a board unable to turn his body. None but the brave deserve the fair!—and in this case certainly two brave souls were united.

"I am delighted," said Secretary Chase, when Johnson had so manfully taken his stand in the Senate against secession: "I am delighted to hear that the noble emigrant ANDREW JACKSON." It was not an extravagant expression of the regard in which he has been held.

The people of the Cape de Verde Islands are suffering fearfully from famine, especially the Island of St. Jago. Thousands of poor creatures are lying about under the walls and hedges in the neighborhood of the town of Porto, Fraya, who have their bones, and made for the town, in hopes of being fed. Many from the more distant parts of the Island, die on their way, unable to reach the town. Starvation and death are making fearful havoc among them. All the other Islands are visited nearly as bad, and the best informed people say that two-thirds of the inhabitants must die. There are no provisions in the Islands, and very little money.

A SUPERIOR REMEDY.—We conscientiously recommend to those suffering from a distressing cough, Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture. It gives immediate relief and is a truly disagreeable to the taste. There is no doubt that the best preparations in use, and is all that its proprietors can give for it. We have tried it the past week, and found relief from a most distressing cough. It is prepared by Dr. Strickland, No. 6 East Fourth Cincinnati, O. and for sale by Druggists at 50 cents per bottle.

Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture.—We have examined a great number of letters from some of the most prominent citizens of Cincinnati and Covington, etc., speaking in the highest terms of Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture, for the cure of Diarrhoea and Dysentery. The letters are too long to publish. Mr. Woods, of Covington, says he was pronounced incurable by the best doctors in Cincinnati, and one bottle of Dr. Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture, effected a permanent cure, after suffering for months with the worst form of Cholera and Dysentery. Another says he was discharged from the United States Hospital, after suffering in the hospital for eight months as incurable, and as a last resource, tried Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture, and was well directed, and has now entered the army again in good health. One man writes he has cured 7 or 8 persons of cholera and dysentery, and one bottle of this valuable medicine. We are confident that the Government should be supplied with it. It is but a short time since one of our men, who was very low condition at one of our Cincinnati Hospitals. His wife was sent for the doctors considered him a hopeless case. He was given one bottle of Strickland's Anti-Cholera Mixture, and in three weeks he was able to return home with the highest of health. All these cases right at home, speak for themselves. We hope all the soldiers will put a bottle of it in their valises, and it may save them or some of their comrades. It is for sale by Druggists at 50 cents per bottle.

A Voice from Vicksburg.

Vicksburg, Miss., Aug. 3, 1862. Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I am happy to state to you that I have used your valuable Cedron Bitters, with great benefit to my system, produced by the unhealthy and unwholesome influence of the Mississippi River, and ground Vicksburg, has it been with Gen. Grant's Army throughout its whole campaign. I can only recommend it to all persons who are exposed to unhealthy climates.

Agent U. S. Sanitary Commission. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 16, 1863. On the 22d day of July last I submitted through an agent of mine, to the Medical Director of the Department of War, a small sample of your Cedron Bitters for his inspection, and requested him to approve its use among our soldiers.

The Rebel Raid into Maryland. June 10th, 7 P. M. The rebels have invaded Maryland in force, and are reported to have fought and defeated General Wallace, who was falling back on Baltimore, closely pursued by the rebel force. A body of rebel troops were also reported marching on Washington. A later dispatch stated that the rebels were within seven miles of Baltimore.
